

Bay Area More Than Pink Walk Scavenger Hunt

Use this photo scavenger hunt to guide you as you walk through the zoo. Take a picture with each animal, and share on social media with the hashtag #SFOMTPW

- Flamingos get their pink color from eating shrimp! Who wore it better, the Chilean flamingos or you?!
- Orangutans love their moms! The young stay with their mama's until they are 7 years old. Give your own mama some love while viewing the orangutans!
- Many of us have experienced the impact of losing someone to breast cancer. While we don't know how Kachina and Kiona the grizzly bears lost their mother, they has also dealt with grief. Give them some love and let's honor our missing loved ones together.
- Women who get regular exercise have about 10%-20% lower risk of breast cancer. Swimming is a great form of exercise. Visit the penguins to get some pointers!
- Komen's 360-degree approach drives research, provides care, unifies community, and takes action. Each of these core pillars has a color to represent them. Can you find four flowers that are growing around the zoo that share these colors?

Green - To represent care
Blue - To represent community
Purple - To represent research
Orange - To represent advocacy
